Hohbach-Lewin, Inc. provided full structural engineering design services for the additions and renovations of this existing single story concrete office building which formerly housed a central phone distribution center.

Faced with an antiquated and severely undersized police facility which had not kept pace with the growth of Los Gatos, the town of Los Gatos sought a more centrally located police station in order to better serve the citizens of Los Gatos and Monte Sereno – the most economical solution proved to be the renovation of an existing vacant office building. Conversion required a full revamp of all building systems, a “gut and re-do” of all interiors with key building addition resulting in a modern state of the art Police Facility. The new facility includes secure holding cells, community meeting rooms, evidence storage rooms, entrance lobby, offices, lockers a fitness room, a new sally port, and a secure parking lot.

The new sub-station supports the police operations of 13 officers, 14 patrolman and 3 captain/evidence personnel.
